BLACKMAILER KILLS RICH MAN

Revenge Is Motive in Brookline Murder

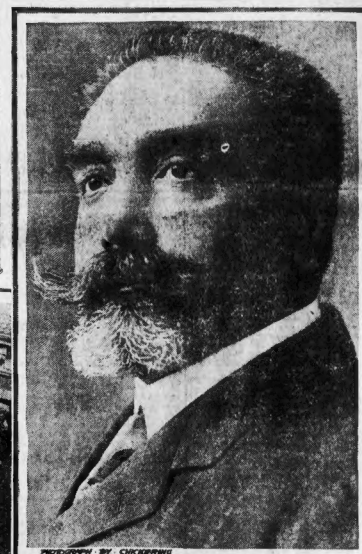

IMPORTER SLAIN AT WIFE'S SIDE

The Boston and Brookline police are working actively along a theory that a blackmailer was the assassin of Gaspare Di Cola, the rich Boston importer and president of the Italian Red Cross, who was shot five times near his Brookline home last night and who died early today from his wounds.

It was reported today that tribute had been demanded and refused, and that the blackmailer in revenge killed Di Cola.

SCENE OF THE BROOKLINE SLAYING AND RICH VICTIM

How Judge J. Albert Brackett, special justice of the West Roxbury court and prominent attorney for Boston theatrical managers, restored to Mrs. Fannie S. Folger, formerly of Winchester and Brookline, real estate and other property estimated to be worth $15,000, more than $50,000, after suit had been brought against him, started Boston legal circles when it became known for the first time today.

Judge Brackett says the property was conveyed to him by Mrs. Folger in May, 1915.

Mrs. Folger, who was left more than $150,000 by her former husband, charged in the suit brought against Judge Brackett that at the judge's instance and request she transferred the real estate and other property to him on his representation that he could then more conveniently handle and dispose of the property, and that afterwards he refused to give an accounting.

The opening of the Boston public schools has again been postponed. They will not open until October 2.

The official statement to this effect will be issued Friday after a conference between Superintendent Dyer and Chairman Mahoney of the Boston Board of Health.

The school committee have given authority to superintendent Dyer after conference with Dr. Mahoney to make the decision about the opening day.

Superintendent Dyer has decided in view of the continued prevalence of influenza paralysis and because of the uncertainty among many parents, that October 2 is better than September 25, which was chosen as the date for opening the schools three weeks ago.

Six Clubs to Print World's Series Tickets

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 21.—The National Commission today ordered for six clubs in the pennant fight to fix the admission prices and to have world's series tickets printed.

This was done so that tickets will be ready for distribution just as soon as the winning clubs clinch the flag.

The commission probably will repay the four losing clubs for the money expended in having the tickets made up. It was learned today that "fans" are hammering all of the six contenders with requests for tickets.

Those records are being filed by each club and will be turned over to the two winners.

MAN WHO SHOT WIFE GIVES UP

Arthur Hood, Who Escaped After Attack in Newton Centre Home, Walks Into the Police Station

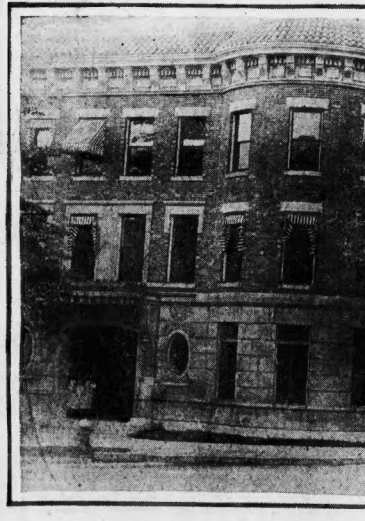

Arthur Hood, of Waltham, whom the Newton police had been hunting all day for breaking into his wife's room in her father's home at No. 1253 Centre street, Newton Centre, early today, and shooting her, walked into the West Newton police station with his father a little after noon and gave himself up.

According to the police, Hood entered the house through a rear window and arrived in his wife's room at Mrs. Hood's room. The door to her room was open, she was in bed alone. He dragged her out of bed and shot her.

Mrs. Hood's screams caused the neighborhood and Hood, fearing capture, hurried from the house. Patrolman Mahoney, standing 100 yards away, heard the shots and screamed.

He ran to the house and, finding the door of the house open, entered. He groped his way upstairs and found Mrs. Hood with her neck around a chair.

In the National League the attendance of the Braves was not at all benefited as a result of the happenings yesterday. Not was Brooklyn greatly bothered by the rain with on the part of the Phillies. The Phillies simply made up the ground they lost on the previous day and pulled up to within a game and a half of the leading team.

Photograph shows, marked by cross, where Gaspare Di Cola, rich importer, was shot and killed by men who waylaid him early today at the corner of Beacon and Fairbanks streets, Brookline. The arrow indicates the doorway to Di Cola's home at No. 21 Fairbanks street. In the foreground of the photograph, according to one account, Di Cola's slayers hid before the shooting in the doorway on Beacon street.

BRITISH SAY FEARFUL TOLL IN SOMME FIGHT

By WILLIAM BAYARD HALE, Staff Correspondent of the International News Service.

Berlin, Sept. 21.—As I write, the greatest of battles in raging Europe is around the village of Courcelles, Marquand and Fiers, in which the English and French have obtained footholds and which, I suppose, will be given up to them when a satisfactory price has been extorted.

In that event the woods between Courcelles and Marquand will probably be the last scene of carnage. I was in them the other day and studied to think of the sickening slaughter that must inevitably follow an attempt to penetrate their gloomy fastnesses, protected by every species of man trap.

PERSONNEL'S VALUE SLIGHT.
Before this dispatch reaches you places like Comblis and Peronne may have yielded. I have been in the outskirts of the latter town—let us give such a name to the ruins amidst which I made my way—and its value is certainly small, although the allies will do everything possible to maintain the moral effect of their conquest. One has to look at the map to detect the enormous disproportion between the effort obtained and the effort which produced it.

On the Somme the English undoubtedly gained some ground within a fortnight, and the French gained some. But every acre cost hundreds of lives. As a matter of fact the German generals agree that the value of the ground is far less than the value of the lives.

Their policy is to exact a heavy price for every foot yielded, not to refuse to pay too high a price to retain it themselves. And the situation is such as to enable them to follow this policy. They are many miles in the interior of the enemy's territory.

In the other hand, every mile they may hold at the conclusion of peace will be an advantage, and of course every mile surrendered has a certain unfortunate moral effect.

WOUNDED OBJECTS.
I asked a British sergeant, German to Germany, the way back from the trenches.
"What does your enemy expect to do there?"
He replied:
"They are trying to wear us out."
"Are they succeeding?"
"Not much."
I asked General Passender, commanding an army corps.
"What do the enemy hope to do?"
His Excellency replied:
"They hope to wear us out."
"Will they succeed?"
The general looked around at his staff officers, and smiled.

I asked two German aviators, shot down within the German lines.
"What result do you expect to attain?"
The answer was:
"Well, maybe they can't stand it as long as we can."
I asked the Crown Prince of Saxony over cigars and coffee, "What do the French and English hope to do?"
I asked General Gallwitz, commanding a corps, "I asked the Crown Prince of Saxony what he thought the enemy was after?"
I asked the Crown Prince of Saxony what he thought the enemy was after?
I asked the Crown Prince of Saxony what he thought the enemy was after?

HIGH PRICE FOR GAINS.
The answer was uniform. There was no hope of breaking through. It was to see which side could kill the more.

I am no prophet nor son of a prophet, but this I know and can testify—that the German feeling on the West front is one of genuine regret over the suffering—their own and the enemy's—from what all sincerely believe to be an insane effort to break through.

The Germans know that at some time they will have to give up the slowly falling back, and they don't want to fall back, but they are not worried at all. They believe the battle, as a field marshal said to me, "They fight, but they don't want to give up."

They can have all they want at the same price.

WAR SUMMARY

It begins to look more and more as though Rumania might face a concerted campaign by the Teutonic allies. The hard fighting in the Dobruja has had the effect of forcing Rumania to withdraw some of her troops from Transylvania, and the weakened line there was struck and beaten back yesterday at Petrovny, which is near the spot where Serbia, Rumania and Austria meet, and is northwest of that spot.

The Austrians not only recaptured Petrovny, they reconquered the pass to the southward, and are now in a difficult position to invade Rumania there without facing any very difficult natural obstacles.

There is a curious analogy, in this Rumanian campaign, to that with which the war opened. The French then attacked Alsace and Lorraine for sentimental reasons; the Rumanians for the same reasons invaded Transylvania. But the German drive through Belgium forced a precipitate withdrawal by the French, and the German drive in the Dobruja has had a similar effect on the Transylvanian campaign.

It is difficult to see what the Teutonic allies would gain by crushing Rumania, in return for the lives they would be forced to spend. Nevertheless, Rumania has appeared a surprisingly weak fighter in the war thus far, and her weakness may tempt her enemies.

The Germans on the Somme yesterday made a major effort to force back the British wedge which crossed the Peronne-Bapaume road. They failed, after a full day of hard fighting. The situation in Picardy then became quiet, and no activities of importance were reported today.

A war theatre where there is such uncertainty as to just what is coming is that about Salonica. Two or three days ago the Serbians and French attacked Florina, and wild rumors that Monastir, to the northward, was about to fall began to fly. Instead, the Serbs and French seemed content to rest on their arms at Florina, and though there was scattering fighting in this locality, some of it very brisk, it at no time attained the proportions of a serious northward drive.

The hard German blow on the Stockholms was not followed up today. Russian attacks, repulsed everywhere, were the only activities mentioned in the Teutonic bulletin today. Petrograd said everything was quiet.

There is considerable fighting on the Italian front, but it seems to get nowhere.

WE CAN WESIDE BY BRITISH

By KENNETH R. CAYE,
Staff Correspondent of the International
News Service.

London, Sept. 21.—Terrific counter-attacks launched by the Germans against the British positions held by the New Zealand troops south of the Albert were repulsed with severe losses to the enemy, the war office announced today. Despite the fury of the German attacks, the British lines were not broken, and the New Zealanders held their ground.

"There was a heavy rain during the night," the war office report follows.
"South of the Albert, strong enemy counter-attacks were made continuing during the night on the positions held by the New Zealand forces. All were beaten off with severe losses to the enemy, who left a number of prisoners in our hands and a large number of dead in front of our lines. Notwithstanding this heavy fighting, we advanced our front in this neighborhood."

Several successful minor enterprises were carried out during the night. Enemy attacks at many places were repulsed.

Serbs and French Defeat Bulgars.

By International News Service.
Paris, Sept. 21.—Substantial gains by the French and Serbs in the fighting in Macedonia and northward in the Balkans were reported today by the French War Office.

A violent counter-attack by the Bulgarians on Kalkamack was repulsed. A vigorous counter-offensive by the Serbs, which had been in progress since the middle of the month, was reported today.

The official communiqué follows:
"Army of the Orient. From the Struma to the Vardar there was an intermittent artillery duel. On the Struma a violent Bulgarian counter-attack was repulsed with severe losses to the enemy. In the region of the Struma the Bulgarians have renewed their attacks against the Serbs. After several days of fighting they succeeded in gaining a foothold in the village, but a counter-attack in which the Serbs used their heavy guns drove out the Bulgarians again."

URGENT RUTHLESS SUBVENE WARFARE

By KENNETH R. CAYE,
Staff Correspondent of the International
News Service.

Berlin, Sept. 21 (via London, Sept. 21).—Major Ernst Haeusermann, leader of the National Liberal party, in a keynote speech to his constituents in the Saarburg district, declared that the submarine campaign had been postponed and not abandoned. He advocated the widest possible use of such submarines and Zeppelins and the most ruthless methods of warfare.

The National Liberal leader asserted that his views were shared by Admiral von Tirpitz, Admiral von Koenig, Prince von Dussow and Count Zepplin.

He maintained that "in a struggle wherein the existence of Germany is at stake the most ruthless use of all possible weapons is called for."

This sentiment was heartily applauded by his audience.

Submarines and Zeppelins, continued Major Haeusermann, were the most effective weapons against "our arch-enemy, England."

He pointed out that the United States, Major Haeusermann warned his hearers against trusting for any permanent effect upon American sympathies from England's military policy and the achievements of the Deutschland and other commercial vessels.

He warned them also not to hope that the German navy would have any greater effect than their predecessors.

Bulgarians Will Defend Monastir.

By International News Service.
London, Sept. 21.—Bulgarian troops treating before the allied forces on the Macedonian front are preparing for a vigorous defense of Monastir. Dispatches to the Central News today told of preparations being made by the Bulgarians to put up a stubborn resistance along the line and are endeavoring to form a new line of defense by trenching. The Serbians anticipated this move and are harassing the retreating forces continually, determined to prevent them from entrenching themselves at any point. Military authorities here declare that it will be some time before Monastir will fall.

The Serbians have been victorious in fighting at Kalkamack. The capture of four machine guns by them was reported today.

Russians Advance in the Carpathians.

By International News Service.
Petrograd, Sept. 21.—Continued success in the Carpathian operations was reported by the Russian War Office in its official statement today.

In the heights east of Panther Mountain 47 men, one officer, six machine guns and a large quantity of arms and munitions were captured. The enemy suffered heavy losses, and many prisoners were captured.

The enemy's retreat was being fought with great stubbornness. The Russian army continued to advance.

"In Macedonia the fighting in the Florina sector is developing to our advantage. By counter-attacks the enemy was thrown back with heavy losses and left many prisoners in our hands."

"On the Rumanian front the battle is continuing with great stubbornness. The enemy maintained his position, which is powerfully fortified. "We are on the front the situation is unchanged."

Report Greek King Prisoner in His Palace

By International News Service.

LONDON, Sept. 21.—An attempt by a German military attaché to assassinate former President Venizelos of Greece failed, says a Central News dispatch from Rome.

The dispatch adds that King Constantine is practically a prisoner in his palace, two lines of trenches having been dug in front of the King's residence.

Force Socialists Into German Army

By International News Service.

LONDON, Sept. 21.—Arrested in Berlin on a charge of sedition anti-war agitation, 130 Socialists have been forcibly impressed into military service, according to a dispatch to the Wireless Press from Zurich today.

Although above the age limit and declared to be unfit for military service, the Socialists were turned out to the military authorities soon after their arrest. They are now being drilled by the military authorities.

A conference of German Socialists was called in Berlin today. It was said that the Socialists were about the war would be taken up. The conference was private.

SLAY "OFFICIALS" CLEAN STREETS

Berlin, Sept. 21.—"It is reported from Sofia," says the Overseas News Agency, "that the Russian army which entered Eastern Rumania had with it a whole brigade of officials or 'bureaucrats' who were ordered to be shot."

The officials were captured, and are now in front cleaning the streets to the same cities which they were to govern."

ALLIES DO KEEP UP BIG DRIVE ALL WINTER

By International News Service.

LONDON, Sept. 21.—"I wish I could pick one of my horses as a winner with the certainty of victory for the Entente Allies," said Lord Derby, the British Under Secretary of War, on receiving the American correspondence on his return from a visit to France, where, with General Joffre, he saw the trials of the "tanks" before they were sent into battle against the Germans. Lord Derby continued: "We now have a European army with better guns, better rifles and better ammunition than any other country in the world today. But I do not agree with the people who expect the war to end within six months, as it must surely continue over the winter."

"We are fighting the best organized nation in the world and it would be a reflection on our own troops not to admit that the Germans are showing extraordinary bravery."

"Two years ago they had a great chance to win. They still are exceedingly strong in engines of destruction, but we at least are even in this respect now and I cannot help feeling that our men individually are better. Soon we hope to have a distinct margin of superiority."

LIQUOR SIGN STIRS MALDEN W. C. T. U.

The Women's Christian Temperance Union of Malden sent to Mayor Blodgett a protest against the billboard on Salem street, near Rockwell, Malden, which contains a liquor advertisement.

The union's letter says that the former owner of the billboard who was the father of the present owner, gave the union a license to use the billboard for liquor advertisement should ever appear on the board. As the sign reads, the union asks Mayor Blodgett to use his influence to have it removed.

way other than to serve the best interests of Mrs. Folger.

"I have never thought of retaining as Justice," said the judge, who at present is at his beautiful 1,500-acre home at Tisbury, N. H. "There is absolutely nothing in that report.
Neither have I heard anything of any action by members of the Bar Association."

NARRIED CHAUFFEUR.

It became known today that after the suicide of Dexter Almy Hall, his widow married her chauffeur, Charles A. Folger, after he had been in her employ three or four months. They eloped to Wilmington, Del. The chauffeur had been recommended to her by Judge Brackett in 1912.

"I do not know him except on the recommendation of an automobile mechanic," said Judge Brackett today.

Mrs. Folger and chauffeur husband lived together for a year in Boston and Winchester, then went to Long Beach, California, where Mrs.
Folger lived until she returned to Boston to press the suit for restitution of her property. She is now living in New London, but the whereabouts of her chauffeur husband is not known.

Mrs. Folger is forty-five years old.
Judge Brackett is forty-three. He is a descendant of a noted Boston family, and has been a justice in West Hobart for twenty years. He was elected to Governor of Vermont in 1902.

"The controversy in the equity court was merely over the propriety of my trusteeship," said Judge Brackett. "I aimed to be fair, right and just in the matter, and I was convinced I was probably more than fair, right and just to her."

"She made me a number of gifts of real estate at the time she was in California. All these gifts I have returned to her, but not under compulsion. If ever she had become in want of help, but I still would not have accepted her gifts. I naturally did not feel that I was doing her wrong."

"JUST AND FAIR"

"As to her complaint to the district attorney, I can only say that nothing developed except people making complaints, but that I acted always in a way that was fair, right and just."

The suit against Judge Brackett was filed with the district attorney on Jan. 9, 1911. It was contested for three years. Numerous pleadings and motions were filed, and a series of hearings were held before Judge
Carter of the district court.

Mrs. Folger called at the district attorney's office and made a complaint, which was turned over to Judge Brackett.

"Mrs. Folger charged that Judge Brackett had refused to make an accounting in regard to property he had received from her," said Mr. Carter.

"Before we started an investigation we were notified that she had been settled out of court by her estate attorney. The matter was then dropped."

The settlement, it is said, was effected shortly before July 4. On August 17, Master Albert P. Carter entered the following report on the case in the office of the Superior Court clerk:

"Pursuant to the order of the court referring the above case to me, the parties appeared before me presenting certain evidence and thereafter I was fully informed by said parties that they had reached an agreement for the settlement of said case and no further hearings have been held."

"The judge in the equity court gave a bill of sale for the property on which $15,000 was due. In another charge made by Mrs. Folger in the equity court, she claimed that the property was a gift to her by Judge Brackett as follows:

"Judge Brackett declared today that property given him by Mrs. Folger included a home she occupied at Winchester, property on Washington street, near the Episcopal City Mission, and several buildings and land on Fifth and O streets, South Boston.

Mrs. Folger in the equity court said that she transferred to him real estate and property of a total value of over $15,000, while he was acting as her attorney."

"On the question of the gifts, I was more willing to waive all claim to them rather than litigate over them.
I had known her former husband thirty years and also her for the length of time, and I always acted as a friend to her after his death. If she did not want me to keep the gifts, I did not wish to keep them. I know that they were restored to her and her heirs."

"The equity proceedings were merely the result of a man who was incapable to result in anybody in dealing with a woman of her type. When she married, she became under a dominant influence and took a different attitude toward him which she had done of her own free will."

YET RECOVERING.

"Before she went to California, I gave her a full and final accounting, and she gave me a release on all property transferred to me, except some property I was still to be turned over to her. This I held during the suit, but there were such advances I made her to be settled."

"Under the settlement of a month ago, however, Judge Brackett requested that she be paid for property on which she had previously given him a release. The property was part of the alleged gifts."

The personal property she says she conveyed to him at his request, which he represented it would give greater convenience in handling and disposal of same, consisted of fifty American Telephone & Telegraph 4 per cent bonds of a value of $45,000.

She charged he had not accounted for the property and bonds and had refused to do so.

She also alleged that on August 12, 1912, she transferred to him at his request, a mortgage deed and note from Ernest D. Barker, upon which there was then due $11,000, and interest.
On December 12, 1912, the mortgage had been reduced to $15,500, and pending $700 she asked Judge Brackett to borrow that amount, using the mortgage as collateral. She says the judge agreed to do this but later said he could not do it, that he would give her $10,000 for it, which was the amount he had in his pocket.

In the bill of complaint, she stated that the property on which the mortgage had been given was assessed for $20,000, and charges that Brackett made no bona fide attempt to borrow $2,000 for her but that $10,500 was paid to her, the largest amount which he could secure on the mortgage.

She charged that in giving her only $10,500, Judge Brackett took an unfair advantage of her, and demanded that the court order him to pay for the amount between what he paid her and the amount due her on the mortgage.

The bill of complaint was filed by C. J. Wright, connected with a bank in Long Beach, Cal., who Mrs. Folger made her trustee after moving to that city. Later she became the joint plaintiff with Wright in order to protect her interests and make the claim. Her attorneys were W. B. Barnes, No. 15 Devonshire at the time.

In his answer to the bill of complaint, Judge Brackett said that the real estate was conveyed to him at her request, but absolutely and without reservation. He denied the alleged value.

this month in Pittsfield and twenty-five in Springfield.

In North Andover, where there were twenty cases in August, and where rigorous measures were taken to stamp out the plague, there have been reported this month only three cases.

The State Department of Health reported these cases of infantile pa-riox.

Quincy—Gertrude Wade, No. 912
Hickory street.
Chelsea—Hugh Woodcock, No. 41
Jackson street.
Everett—Alice Herbert, No. 1 Beacon

Dorchester—Florence W. Kendall,
No. 21 Liberty street.
Hoyden—Edna Lebeau, No. 201 Elm street.
Kendall—Kathleen, No. 228
Roxbury street.
North Andover—Edith Durant, No.
201 West Main street.
Pittsfield—Marie Fong, No. 145 South
Main street.

Boston—Six cases, names withheld by request of Boston Board of Health.
An appropriation of $4,000 to aid the city fight on infantile paroxysm was asked by Mayor Currier before the city Council for the week ending last night. He asked the Council to declare that the facilities of the city available to care for the victims are adequate to their limits. He asked the Council for permission to send infants to Chicago's Island or to the Hennepine Hospital in Brighton.

HARVARD COLLEGE ACTS.

The Southamptown street detention hospital is completely filled, as well as four visiting booths which have been placed in the hospital yard to meet the emergency. Fifty-six patients are receiving attention there.
Authorities at Harvard took official notice of the epidemic when it was decided to ask each student who enters the university to return Monday, to sign a card stating that he has not been exposed to cases of the disease during the summer vacation.

The cases of those who came to college during the summer will be investigated, and the realization that this action will be taken as a result of a conference at Harvard between the faculty and the Medical School and professors of the Medical School.

The disease apparently continues to decrease in western Massachusetts, where Boston, Hamilton and Holyoke were once heavily represented in the latest reports.

A number of the Everett School Board will be held tomorrow to consider the advisability of again postponing the opening of the schools, which is now scheduled for Monday.

The third case of the plague reported in North Andover was that of F. Woodcock, seven, son of Mr. and Mrs. Woodcock. The child has been moved to a local hospital.

banks street. This was at ten minutes past 10 last night.

The assassin fled and is still at large. He made no attempt at robbery. He was a good shot. He fired five times at Di Cola, and every bullet hit the husband, while the wife was standing by the latter's side.

Di Cola was killed by the first shot. He had been the motive due to the fact that he was not only a successful business man, but also a prominent member of the Italian Red Cross Society.

DIAGRAM BY ARTIST OF DI COLA MURDER SCENE

Di Cola was assessed on about 1600 of real estate valuation in Brookline alone, in addition to his personal property tax and his business holdings in Boston.

His business was located at No. 44 Clinton street, in the third floor of the Whitney building. Di Cola came there nearly every week day morning and stayed until about noon. Mrs. Di Cola would come down about every afternoon and take charge of the office in her husband's absence. When he returned, they would go home together.

Di Cola was not only an ardent supporter of the allies in the European war, but was willing to back his opinion with money.

According to former representative today, a friend of Di Cola, who was the slain man, Di Cola recently made a bet with a German sympathizer that the allies would win the war.

But his Italian and pro-ally sympathies had never, so far as he learned today, involved Di Cola in anything more serious than earnest arguments.

BAY STATE MEN LEAD BIG PARADE

By BERT FORD.

At Paso, Texas, Sept. 21.—The high esteem which the regular army holds for the Second Massachusetts Brigade was shown today when General E. L. Loring Sweater's three regiments, the Fifth, Eighth and Ninth were given the right of line in the first war strength division ever paraded in the United States.

Colonel Edward L. Logan headed the column with his Fighting Ninth and the boys from the Bay State were given an ovation. It took thirty-five minutes for the Massachusetts forces to pass.

The honor of being assigned the lead in a turnout of between 25,000 and 30,000 National Guard and regular troops was a signal one and was appreciated by General Sweater and his organizations.

The Massachusetts units responded to the first call today at 4:45 in order to be ready for the start at 7:30. Regiments were 1,350 strong and companies 100.

The troops covered seven miles. The forces marched in column of four and in light marching order with packs and one man.

The river of blood which flowed through the streets was tapping.

There was little difference between the contributions of the various States, Massachusetts and Michigan being Pennsylvania was a little more than Ohio, but Ohio surpassed in number though the band with the South Carolina troops that struck up "Dixie" received the biggest hand.

South Carolina had the jump on the other States in turning out machine guns mounted on autocars instead of on pack mules.

The regular infantry regiments differed from the well-trained National Guard troops principally in the tail and ranks. The militia companies had a tendency to straggle a bit in the platoons, but the regulars were alert and perfectly aligned in the last column as the 1st. South Carolina were not so straight of shoulder as the lads from the Bay State and Michigan had the tallest men.

A review by General Clement on the march found Fort Bliss closed the program. The procession was twenty miles in length.

The City Council's refusal yesterday to pass an order for an appropriation of $10,000 to be used in repairing and modernizing the house of the City of Boston is an example of the kind of thing that the City Council, Dorchester, today brought to light the fact that the building some $10,000 ago was condemned as unsafe for occupancy by Building Commissioner O'Hara.

HUGHES SOUNDS TARIFF WARNING

By International News Service.

Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 21.—Charles E. Hughes campaigning through Indiana today warning Hoosier voters that a continuance of the Democratic tariff policy could mean nothing but "agitation, confusion and serious disturbance" to the nation.

Governor Hughes confined his remarks almost wholly to the tariff question on the first lap of his trip. Particularly did Mr. Hughes lay stress on his demand for protection to commerce. This also was greeted with cheers.

Joe McKenzie and O'Brien Report to Brickley

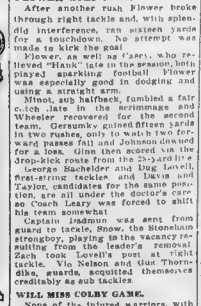

A half hour of tough, imaginative play was meted out to the H. S. College squad by Coach Gardner on Thursday. The original lineups of teams A and B were substantially the same as in Tuesday's session, with Ison and

N. real spring was attempted, team 11 being given the ball in mid-well in order to supply defensive work for team A. Coach Brinkley frequently stopped the play to give instructions.

Five freshmen were taken in hand for the last time by Jerry Brinkley for their last year. They will be in the line for the first time in their last year.

Jim McKeown was among the newcomers who reported to the health department, and both were paid by high a mil-

Yale Regulars Held to Lone Touchdown

New Haven, Ct., Sept. 21.—Head Coach Bud Jones gave the Yale first and second eleven a forty-minute practice game, the longest scrimmaging since the squad reported a fortnight ago.

Brilliant end running by Halfback Wells, and two clever field goals by his companion back, Joe Neville, were the features of the performance. The varsity only scored once and were checked three times after reaching the scrum's 50-yard line. On the fourth occasion, after Hutchinson and Sanders ground their way to the second team's 5-yard line, Hutchinson took the ball across for the varsity touchdown.

The new coaches were Henry Hobbs and John Field. Captain Black was again out of the line-up, Senator replacing him at left guard. Nichols and Connolly, a new pair of end rashes, were tried.

ONLY 3 LETTER MEN OUT FOR WESLEYAN

Middleton, Ct., Sept. 21.—About a dozen candidates, some of whom had been spending the summer in a logging camp and are in consequence as hard as nails, answered the first call of Captain Deane for football material at Wesleyan. Now there are nearly a score of men out to try.

Coach Gus C. Kenna will have only three letter men, Wilkinson, Tice, Talbot, tackle, and Howell, end, to start with.

FLORIDA FULLBACK FOR REVERE HIGH

The Revere High School football team has been practicing for about two weeks and their prospects appear great. Fourteen veterans have reported to Coach Remondet and new candidates bring the total to about fifty.

JOE HIGGINS TO ENTER FORDHAM

Joe Higgins will probably represent the New York Athletic in open competition in the future, as the New England Association half-mile champion has decided to leave Holy Cross and continue his studies at Fordham University.

WILLIAMS' LEADER LOST TO HIS TEAM

Williamstown, Sept. 21.—Hal Wright, Williams College varsity fullback last fall and captain-elect, will be ineligible until the mid-year, but may be back in good standing for basketball. However, he is lost to the football team.

LOOMIS RESTING EASILY.

New York, Sept. 21.—It was said at the Post Graduate Hospital today that C. W. Loomis, the Boston A. A. runner, who was taken there from a hotel Monday, suffering from appendicitis, was resting comfortably. No sign had been detected. It was added, for an operation.

FOOTBALL STAR RETIRES.

Chicago, Sept. 21.—John Barrett, star half-back of the Washington and Lee University football eleven last season, announced his retirement from the game today. He will enter business.

JACK POLLARD PLACED.

New York, Sept. 21.—Jack Pollard, Cornell '14, and '15, and '16, Havermer, New York University, '14, have been assigned to coach the Hamilton Institute football team this fall.

MISS STEBBINS WINNER.

In a final play golf tournament for women members at Brea-Burn, Miss Frances Stebbins planted her flag on the nineteenth fairway with her handicap of 10.

ON SCHOOL GRIDIRONS.

Cambridge Latin has reported its game scheduled with St. Marks, October 11. It is also probable that the Milton Academy team will be called on, October 12.

Medford High has lost the services of John Bessell, football star, who is a member of the team. He has been transferred by the addition of several husky freshmen.

Medford High is fast shipping up for the opening tilt with Weymouth, September 22. The team, coached by Jack Bessell, has been coached by the addition of several husky freshmen.

Formation drill is the order these days at Boston College High. Coach McCabe has been assisted by Jack Bessell, who has been transferred by the addition of several husky freshmen.

Medford High is fast shipping up for the opening tilt with Weymouth, September 22. The team, coached by Jack Bessell, has been coached by the addition of several husky freshmen.

The State Itself Should Collect and Distribute Milk

It Is the Most Necessary of All the Necessaries of Life

THE price of milk, the staple food of the poor children, the most necessary of all the necessities of life, is again to be increased. The children cannot get along without it, families cannot get along without it.

We have had five investigations concerning the cost of milk and the reason for its constantly rising price, and yet the price of milk continues to rise.

It cannot be doubted that the farmers need more money for their milk. It cannot be doubted that milk raising is not a profitable industry in New England. It cannot be doubted that something ought to be done to encourage the breeding of better and more cows, the rearing of more land for cultivation. But this increase in the production of milk can never be encouraged unless the farmers are able to make some profit on their milk.

If the cost of milk to the children is too high, the fault lies with the distributors, with the railroads and the milk dealers. The milk dealers accuse the railroads of charging the milk dealers too much compared with other comparable freight and of rendering wretched service. Nobody doubts that the railroads could do better, if they were not obliged to carry the burden of lawlessness and mismanagement.

H. P. Hood & Co., one of the three great distributing milk dealers in New England, has submitted a statement of costs. This statement, we understand, has been submitted to former investigating commissions and goes unchallenged. On its face it indicates small enough profits. Of course, the statement is not decisive, and we are no nearer the truth about the cost of milk than we were ten years ago, when its advancing price first demanded our attention.

THERE IS ONE FINAL, COMPLETE, FUNDAMENTAL REMEDY FOR THIS UNHAPPY AND INTOLERABLE SITUATION. THE GOVERNMENT OUGHT TO TAKE OVER THE COLLECTION AND DISTRIBUTION OF MILK ITSELF. We distribute vaccine at cost; we distribute at cost water, fire protection, police protection, education. In all the advanced countries of the world the governments are distributing today at cost telephone messages, telegrams and railroad transportation. In Germany the government is distributing at cost street railway transportation. It is notorious that those countries have advanced faster in civilizing conditions toward the objects of all social effort in proportion to the extension of the governmental functions.

Milk is a necessary of life and health. It is the greatest giver of strength and the most dangerous vehicle of disease. There should be no profit in the distribution of such a product. There should be no consideration of profit connected with its distribution. The object of distributing it should be all public, just as the postoffice today carries below cost certain classes of matter which the government considers to have educational value; and, as the government-owned railroads of Australia carry agricultural products at special rates for public objects, so we ought not to consider profit, but the necessity of giving every child in the State all the milk it needs with every precaution against its contamination.

Hood & Co. makes a public offer to sell its plant to the State. Whether the State should buy existing plants or should complete with private distributors is a question not necessary to decide before it is determined to undertake public distribution of our milk.

Evidence is apparently increasing in New York that milk may be the cause of the spread of infantile paralysis. Certainly we know it is the great cause of the spread of other diseases. Why, then, should we hesitate to undertake its public distribution as a matter of public health, so that no consideration of profit shall endanger its purity or the opportunity of children to obtain all they need of it?

Pending Public Ownership the B. & M. System Should Be Reorganized

THE stockholders of the Boston & Maine have by a very large vote endorsed the decision of the Board of Directors to place that railroad in the hands of a receiver, in order to adjust its financial status, after every reasonable effort by voluntary agreements had been exhausted and failed to accomplish a reorganization.

The minority stockholders of the Boston & Maine would be far wiser if they joined with the Board of Directors in an effort to reorganize the railroad by making the leased lines, which constitute four-fifths of the system, come into the system on an equality with the stockholders of the Boston & Maine, as investors in the enterprise and not as creditors, demanding their pound of flesh, even in the lean years, when to take it means destruction to the Boston & Maine.

Until the inevitable public ownership arrives, it is difficult to understand how men can doubt the wisdom and necessity of consolidating the Boston & Maine system into one corporation. Let the minority stockholders help an honest reorganization, and then watch out lest under cover of it any oppressive schemes are attempted. Let them also insist that the railroad sue those who were responsible for the great losses of the Boston & Maine.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

The Song of the Milk Trust

WHEN John D. gets too prehistoric, people stow their cars away. And the gasoline quotations take a sudden drop next day. But we bank upon the mothers, high and low and rich and poor. And we never have to worry lest our profits are secure. So we fix our price according to the dividends we need. And we always know they'll pay it, when there's hungry kids to feed.

WHEN the railroads get too greedy in the charges for their freights. All the shippers get together and refuse to pay the rates. But our bet is on the mothers—they themselves may want to be heard. They are all the same—these mothers—everywhere throughout the land. And when little kids are hungry they will pay what we demand.

WHEN the butchers in Chicago boost the market price of meat. There is danger that the poor will find something else to eat. But our bet is on the mothers—they themselves may want to be heard. They may lack for warmth and shelter, but their children will be fed. Fleecing people is a calling that is often far from sure. But we count upon the mothers—and our profits are secure.

Too Much Home Work Retards Children

By Woods Hutchinson, M.D.

The World's Best Known Writer on Medical Subjects

THE motto of the new schools of today is, "Everything that helps the child to grow." They don't stop to quibble over whether the growth is mental or physical or moral—the growth looks good to them, and they proceed to get behind it and boost it. Because they have discovered that there is one and one kind of growth, after all, and that what looks like, mainly, physical development today, helps mental growth tomorrow, and mental all the time. In one sense, you can't teach morals at all to a child; just let him a decent example and let him grow his own. In another sense, you just can't teach teaching them all the time, because they're inherent in everything. There is nothing foreign or imported or come-down-from-the-sky about them; they simply go with the job, being to the mind, are the only way to play it—sincerely, fearlessly, kindly. A child's game and a child's character grow just as naturally and as inseparably, and so we secure and define a goal as its body does, and anything that really helps one being all three.

At the new nineteenth century education is setting itself to protect and improve the child's health in another most effective fashion. One of the many problems of child welfare which the schools have had to face, but have hitherto blantly ignored, was that of work done by the children outside of school. A very considerable percentage of children in both town and city schools have tasks or chores or jobs of various sorts to do, at home or for the family, either permanently from poverty or the emergency of sickness in the family or future of health in the bread-winning.

Within reasonable limits both as to time and strain upon the child, the value of Maine seem to have been dissatisfied about something. In some cases it is a survival of the old hard-labor, idea that children ought to begin to do something toward earning their keep as soon as practicable, or even to be back and return a profit on the expense of their rearing and maintenance before they can reach legal age and escape from the parental control. As an old farmer of my boyhood days used to angrily remark: "Boys is the most ungrateful stock a farmer kin keep. Jest when they begins to be worth they sell 'em up and leave you."

Teach Girls a Business, Says Dorothy Dix; Some Day They May Need It

The Ability to Make an Independent Living Is the Best Safeguard a Woman Can Have Against Poverty, Hunger and Brutal Men

By Dorothy Dix

THERE are millions of parents in these United States today who are wondering just what to do with their Mamie or Sadie, who graduated from high school last June. They have neither the inclination nor the money to send her off to college. They are not enough off for her not to be forced at once into office, or store, or factory.

They don't want her to spend her time gadding the streets with other idle girls and boys, and so the problem of what to do with Mamie's and Sadie's superfluous time and energy is a problem that keeps them awake at nights.

Let me implore the parents of such girls to settle the question in the only right way by sending their daughters to learn some gainful occupation by which they can earn an honest living if the need ever comes to them.

Only a Training in How to Make a Living Can Make a Girl Truly Free

We women talk a lot about the wrongs of our sex, but every political injustice and social injustice that has ever been perpetrated against us slinks into notoriety before the wrong that our parents do us in not teaching us some way to support ourselves.

They send us out into the world helpless and defenseless, with no weapon with which to protect ourselves. They put us at the mercy of poverty and cold and hunger and brutal men, for these are the cruel lot of the woman in need who knows no way of making enough money to provide for her daily wants. It is the crime of all crimes, and that it is committed in the name of love does not palliate it, nor change its effect.

Life at best is full of chances. Nobody can tell what a few years may bring forth. Riches take wings and fly away. Relatives and friends die. The most promising marriages often end in disaster.

No human foresight can altogether protect a girl against the contingencies of fate, but if we have trained her to some trade or profession so that she has in herself the ability and skill to make a decent living, we have at least guarded off from her the worst blow of disaster. We have given her an anchor to windward that will hold her safe while the storm blows over her head.

Suppose a girl marries well but disaster overtakes her husband. He may fail in business, or lose his situation through no fault of his own. He may become an invalid. He may die, leaving her with a house full of children. It is a tragedy if the wife is a helpless, untrained woman who knows no way of making a cent. Her husband may perish for lack of a little help, or for lack of proper nourishment. Her children may be separated and sent to public institutions because they cannot feed them.

And a Trained Woman Need Never Be Husband Forever to a Brutal Forward

If it is not for some gainful occupation, the situation is merely a misfortune. She can step into the breach, keep her family together, and work out their salvation.

Above all, having been trained to some gainful occupation, the sharp sword with which a woman can protect herself against a brutal husband if also has the misfortune to marry such a one. There is nothing more pitiful in the world than the fact that untold numbers of women have to endure a daily martyrdom of abuse and ill treatment from men who kick them about as if they were dogs, and like dogs they have to lick the hand that beats them, because they have no way by which they can support themselves and their children.

And their husbands know this and take advantage of the knowledge. These men would not dare to ill use a wife who could go back to her old job.

For these and a million other good reasons I implore all parents, as they love their daughters, to have them taught some gainful occupation by which they can support themselves. "Financial independence is the best gift that any father and mother can make to their daughter, and to withhold it from her is simply rambling with her fate."
